I understand that the whole problem of the handling of gifts received by individual employees of the Agency from foreigners as a result of their regular agency duties is currently being reviewed.

The tea set presented to me by [REDACTED] is currently in the custody of the [REDACTED] station. It is clearly not a personal gift, but one resulting solely from [REDACTED] obvious desire to fortify his position with the Agency. Will you please advise me as to the disposition which should properly be made of this tea set?
